ELECTRICAL BUNCO NOW. "WIRE TAPPERS" WITH A WIRE TO AN "ELECTRICAL COMPANY."

Rusiness Must Be Getting Profitable if It Can Pos en These Extras-Chicago Broker Who Was Arrested With the Gang, Declares That He Had Just Made Their Acquaintance. Benjamin Doktor of 596 Seventh avenue, who formerly kept a saloon at 9 Delancey street, but falled in business, called upon Capt.
McClusky of the Detective Bureau about a week ago and told this story; A man called on me at the saloon who was making considerable money by betting on the horses. I made several bets through him and always won. They were all for small amounts. Then I failed and I didn't see the man any more until about two weeks ago, when he called at my house. He took me to 756 Eighth avenue and in a flat on he third floor he introduced me to two men. Then he showed me a set of telegraph instruments screwed inside a dress suit case and a lot of other electrical instruments fastened in a big Saratoga trunk. He also showed me steel pole climbers, wire spreaders, wire stretchers and everything that was needed to tap wires. He explained his wire tapping scheme and told me that it was by such a scheme as this that he had won money for me before. Then they took me to the Imperial Electric Company at 241 West Forty-sixth street. The manager of this place was W. H. McNutt and he told me that the electrical company had another office in Chicago. They showed me a machine that cost $778 and said that if I would give them the money to buy that that they would have everything needed to make a fortune. I finally put up the money and then I give them $500 to bet on the races. They got some ticking on the wire in the room and then told me that everything was not working right and that the operator was nervous when I was around. After that they would not let me into the room and I guess my $1,278 is gone."

Capt. Mc lusky put Detectives Kear, Fogarty and Pepperted on the case. They found that a wire ran from the Eighth avenue flat to the electrical "company," which, by the way, is not in the directory but which has a lot of electrical apparatus on show. The detectives ar-apparatus on show. The detectives arone I shand. Charles H. Gage, who said he was a broker from Chicago, and George Neil of 24 West Forty-sixth street. The first three were arrested at the flat. Neil was taken into custody at the electrical store, of which he was in charge in McNutt's absence. All the apparatus described by Doktor was seized at the flat. At Police Headquarters, Doktor identified arroll as the telegraph operator and Newby as the man who had introduced him into the husiness. He also said that he had seen Neil at the store the day he bought the electrical instrument. The four prisoners were taken to Jefferson Market court where Magistrate Pool remanded them as suspicious persons until to-day.

apt. McClusky said last night that McNutt capt. McClusky said last night that McNutt was well known to the police. Eight months ago he was arrested by Capt. Schmittberger in a raid on fake wire tappers on Eighth avenue, near Twenty-third street, but was discharged. More recently he was arrested on the complaint of a Countess Somebody in Brooklyn, but he was released in this case also, as the Countess signed a paper saving that she had given the money to him as a broker. Newby, the police said, was a member of the same gang.

Gaye said his arrest was an outrage. He told Magistrate Pool that he did not know the other prisoners well, but had been introduced into the room not five minutes before the detectives came. He said that he was a broker of thesago and that he was yisting a friend in ot know Gage.

"A friend of mine, a lawyer in Chicago," said he, "was passing through the city last week on his way to the Paris Excosition. He called on ne and in course of the talk he happened to say that a friend of his from Chicago, a broker named Gage, was in the city. That is the only time I ever heard his name. I suppose he is all right, because my friend said he was his friend."

PHILOSOPHER IN THE TOMBS. Raise $2,500 for Me, He Says, and Make a Man of Me Economically. Judge Foster of the Court of General Sessions received a letter yesterday from Henry Smith the Tombs, new prison, cell 23, charged with assaulting a man in a Bowery restaurant who refused to pay for his food. Smith, who will be examined eventually by a lunacy comnission, suggested that the Judge busy himself with raising not less that $2,500, to be paid over 'One hundred dollars a year paid over or assured to me," he said, "would be a trifle over the cos. of my maintenance in either the jail or the pourhouse."

He went on to say that it would be as chean for society to help him outside of the prison walls as within and would save him a lot of inconvenience, peace of mind and self-respect. He declared that somewhere within the State recently the monthly allowance of a pauper was paid directly to the pauper in person and "the necessity of the degradation and association of the poorhouse avoided."

If you can't do anything for me, Judge, the letter concluded, "send me my lawyer again before I am shipped away. (I never learned his name.)" ferred to the United States Court. By a decision of the Board of Classification of the United States General Appraisers, made public yesterday afternoon, the assessment of duties by Collector Bidwell upon merchandise imported from Hawaii is affirmed. The decision, which will govern the revenue officers in the future, was rendered by General Appraiser H. M. Somerville. It overrules the protest of W. H. Crossman & Bro., importers of this city, who imported from Hawaii various lots of merchandise upon which duty was assessed at the rates provided by the Tariff act of 1897, and who protested against the assessment upon the ground that Hawaii was a part of the United States. At the office of Curie, Smith & Maxwell, attorneys for the importers, it was stated yesterday by a representative of the firm that the case would no doubt be carried into the United States Courts

The assessment of duties upon Crossman & Bro. by the Collector of Customs at this port was made under the terms of the joint resolution of Congress of July 7, 1898, which provided for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the

of Congress of July 7, 1898, which provided for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States and declared that 'until legislation shall be enacted extending the United States customs laws and regulations to the Hawaiian Islands, the existing customs relations of the Hawaiian Islands with the United States and other countries shall remain unchanged."

The goods reached this port from Honolulu on April 25, 1900. When duties were assessed the importers demanded free entry on the ground that Hawaii had become a part of the territory of the United States. It was held by them that that portion of the joint Congressional resolution that declared that the customs relations with Hawaii should remain unchanged was unconstitutional in that it was a violation of those clauses of the Constitution which provide that duties shall be uniform throughout the United States. W. Wickham Smith prepared the brief containing the argument for W. H. Crossman & Bro., and Acting Counsel for the Treasury Henry J. Webster prepared the brief for the Government. The decision of General Appraiser Somerville says in part:

"The question involved in this protest is the constitutional right of Congress tolevy duties on merchandise imported from the Hawaiian Islands after the promulgation of the joint resolution to provide for annexing the Hawaiian Islands after the promulgation of the joint resolution to provide for annexing the Hawaiian Islands after the promulgation of the joint resolution to provide for annexing the Hawaiian Islands to the United States, approved July 7, 1898.

"The contention of the importers is that at

The contention of the importers is that at The contention of the importers is that at the time of the shipment and entry of the goods the Hawaiian Islands constituted a part of the territory of the United States, and that, for this reason, they were not subject to duto under the Dingley act, but were entitled ty free entry. The right of Congress to levy these duties is denied.

"The antagonistic contentions involved in this protest may be briefly formulated as follows: It is contended on the part of the Government that the Federal Constitution does not extend, ex proprio rigore, with all its limitations, to newly acquired territory not yet admitted as a State; that the power of Congress over the territories is general, and plenary mitted as a Sfate; that the power of Congress over the territories is general and plenary to make such rules and regulations for their government as, in its discretion, that body may see fit to do, subject only to those fundamental limitations in favor of personal rights which are formulated in the Constitution and in its amendments, it being contended that these limitations arise by inference and from the general spirit of that instrument, rather than by express and direct application of its provisions.

"A further contention of the Government is

than by express and direct application of its provisions.

"A further contention of the Government is that until Congress by special legislation extends the tariff and other revenue laws over newly acquired territory, and establishes therein collection districts, with ports of entry and clearance for vessels, such territory remains a foreign country for tariff purposes, and its ports are not domestic ports within the meaning of the laws of Congress.

"The importers, on the other hand, contend that Congress is the creature of the Federal Constitution; that it necessarily derives all its just powers from the provisions of that instrument, and that while, in legislating for the Territories, it may properly exercise the combined powers of the general and of a State Government, nevertheless the Federal Government is one of delegaised powers, and all of its legislative authority must be exercised in subordination to the principles and subject to the limitations of the Constitution; and, as stated in Poliard vs. Hagan, 3. Howard, 225, 'every nation acquiring territory, by treaty or otherwise, must hold it subject to the constitution and laws of its own Government, and not according to those of the Government ceding it."

"On these issues the decisions of the courts and the opinions of jurists are, apparently, in a state of conflict, if not of inextricable confusion. The question of the constitutional powers of Congress over newly acquired territory is conceeded to be one of great moment, in the solution of which vast consequences are involved, in view of the present status of a large territory recently ceded by the kingdom of Spain to this country, under the provisions of the Treaty of Paris, made Dec. 10, 1898 (30 Stat., p. 1734). Political parties have divided on this issue, and a question purely constitutional thus becomes political in its nature and consequences.

THIEF CHASE IN THE CHICKEN MART

Bicycle Policeman "Ajax" Whitman headed mob of about 500 men, women and children esterday morning in a chase after two alleged chicken thieves and bagged his game. The alleged thieves were Mrs. Sarah Goldfogil of 92 Rivington street. They went into the butcher shop of Jacob Reswat at 39 Ludlow street, and while Mrs. Atelberg was purchasing a chicken which had been marked down to 15 cents in a hot weather bargain sale, Mrs. Goldfogil is alleged to have secreted another chicken under her apron. astenings and raised an alarm by shouting: Bolice! murder! a chicken stole, a chicken tole!" The cry is a familiar one in the marts where a chicken thief stands in about the same category as does a horse thief in the far West. The cry was echoed throughout the neighborthe news was flashed around that the chicken was a thoroughbred, 2 years old, warranted sound, firm and muscular in every fibre. In was a thoroughbred, 2 years old, warranted sound, firm and muscular in every fibre. In the excitement the two women ran out of the store and toward Division street.

Policeman Whitman was seen approaching just then. He biew his whistle and with the skill for which he is famous glided down the maze of push carts in safety, the owners clearing the way as best they could. He arrived opposite the two women just as they disappeared into the hallway of the tenement at 9 Ludlow street, made a fiving leap from the bicycle, which proceeded across the street and down the steps of a basement store, and rushed in the hallway. The women were nowhere to be seen, but in a room on the first floor of the tenement Whitman heard breathing under a folding bed, and lifting the bed up in his arms found Mrs. Goldfogil who begged for meroy. The other woman was found in the yard. Holding them with one hand and wheeling his bicycle with the other Whitman haled the women to the Essex Market police court where he graphically described his chose after the pair.

They were held for examination and Whitman left the court amid the cheers of the chicken dealers, their relatives and friends.

ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT. The Cashier of August Beckman & Co. Locked

On April 13 he disappeared from New York, it is said, with disappeared from New York, it is said, with $2,000 of his employers' money. Photographs and descriptions of Kahle were sent throughout the country. Last evening Detectives Bock and Halpin were standing in front of a note on carke street, when they saw a man pass by who answered Kahle's description. To assure himself, Detective Bock consulted a memorandum, in which a photograph of Kahle was pested, and then, stepping up to the stranger, inquired if he was from St. Louis. Without suspicion Kahle said: "Why, no, I have lately come from New York." At the station Kahle is said to have made a full confession, and said he would return to New York to lace the charge without requisition papers.

COOKING TEACHER OUT. SHE CAN'T FIND OUT WHETHER IT

WAS PIE OR RISCUIT. And the Courts Wont Put Her Back Into the Public School System-Should Have Ap-pealed to the State SuperIntendent-No Civil Service Umbrella for 84-a-Day Men.

An application of Marion McA. Christie to compel the Board of Education to reinstate her as teacher of cooking in the public schools has been denied by Justice Bischoff of the Supreme Court, because she had not availed herself of the right to appeal to the State Superintendent of Public Schools from the decision of City Superintendent William H. Maxwell against her. She received in June, 1897, a license for six months, which was renewed for another six months, and she was then dropped. She declared that her appointment for a limited time was without authority and that it acted as a permanent appointment, so that she could not be removed without charges.

She has been writing to the different officers and school boards since her removal to get reinstated and to find out what the charges against her were. She says she is sure her cooking is all right because she received 100 per cent. When she passed her examination, It was stated in the moving papers that one of the principals of the schools in which she taught had charged her with inefficiency, but she says she could learn no particulars. City superintendent Maxwell wrote that she had failed to receive the recommendation of Borough Superintendent Jasper and one of the school principals and so her license had not been renewed. She declares that her piecrusts and biscuits were maintained at their original grade. crusts and biscuits were maintained at their original grade.

Her appeal to the School Board for Manhattan and The Bronx was dismissed last April on the report of the Committee on Sundries, Bylaws and Legislation, to which it was referred. The committee submitted a diplomatic report in which it said without any particulars that it had examined her case and considered that her application for a renewal of her license should be denied. She did not submit any of her cooking to this committee. Her salary was $1,000

Justice O'Gorman of the Supreme Court has denied a motion of Edward A. Hayes to be reinstated as assistant expert accountant in the Comptroller's Office. He was appointed on Jan. 16, 1899, and was dismissed without charges on April 20 last. He said that as he had served full time as a volunteer fireman at Jamaica. L. L. where he has resided five years, he should not have been dismissed without charges. Justice O'Gorman states that as he was paid by the day, at $4 a day, his term of employment ceased with each day and he did not come under the Civil Service rules but could be dismissed any day without cause.

JERSEY CITY PUPILS SIGHT.

Only 69 School Children Found With Perfect

Vision Out of 315. Dr. Wallace Pyle of Jersey City who in June last was instructed by the Jersey City Board of Education to examine the eyes of pupils in Public School No. 1 yesterday submitted his report. He had examined the eyes of 152 boys and 163 girls. Only sixty-nine pupils were found with girls. Only sixty-nine pupils were found with perfect vision. There were, however, only seventy-one serious cases of imperfect vision, and most of these had been aggravated by neglect. There were nine cases of trachoma, and as Dr. Pyle considers this disease infectious, he recommends that these pupils be excluded when the schools reopen on Sept. 10, if they are not by that time cured. The other aiments were classified as follows: Defective distant vision, 73; defective near vision, 12; astigmatism, 56; requiring glasses, 71. There were other minor defects.
